VISITING FELLOWSHIPS (NON-STIPENDIARY)

FURTHER PARTICULARS

Introduction

Exeter College proposes to appoint up to six distinguished scholars to (non-stipendiary) Visiting Fellowships for the academic year 2026–27.

Visiting Fellowships contribute to the academic community at Exeter College and are for people who will be spending a substantive period of the academic year in Oxford conducting research, but who are not currently employed by, or otherwise associated with, Oxford University or one of its colleges. These Fellowships are therefore primarily intended for Professors or Associate Professors (or equivalent) who are on sabbatical or research leave from an academic institution outside Oxford (i.e. who are already provided with financial support as a result of being employed by that institution), and who will spending a period of their leave in Oxford undertaking research. Nonetheless, the College also welcomes applications from other distinguished individuals who intend to engage in academic activities in Oxford lasting up to one year.

Prospective applicants should, on their own initiative, engage with one or more Fellows of the College in advance of applying, in order to establish how their existing knowledge and proposed research can benefit the College during a period as a Visiting Fellow.

These appointments, which offer an association with the College and not employment, are unremunerated.

Selection Criteria

1. A proposed project in a subject area relevant to the College, and which is likely to produce valuable results.
2. The necessity of a period of residence within the University of Oxford to the candidate's successful completion of the proposed research or scholarly project.
3. The value added to the project by an association with Exeter College in particular.
4. The intellectual contribution that the candidate would make to the College during their time as a Visiting Fellow.
5. Demonstrable ability and commitment to contributing academically and socially within the College, as described in the 'Duties' section below.
6. Whether or not the candidate has held a visiting fellowship, or equivalent, at an Oxford College. (NB the College will prefer candidates who have not previously enjoyed a similar association in the University of Oxford, and will normally not offer a Visiting Fellowship to someone who has previously been a Visiting Fellow at Exeter College.)

Duties

1. To engage, during the period of the Fellowship, in research or other academic activity in Oxford.
2. Actively to contribute to the College community. In particular, it is expected that they will deliver 1-2 talks during the tenure of the Fellowship (in order to share some of the results of their academic work with other College members, for example during one of the Senior Common Room event nights), and that they will volunteer to give one or more seminars to students of the College (for example, knowledge about their own area of research for the benefit of undergraduates and postgraduates, or sharing knowledge about research methods), or to provide mentorship to postgraduate students.

Terms and Conditions

These are non-stipendiary positions and are available for a maximum of three terms (9 months, from October through June) of the academic year 2026–27.

The Fellows will be members of the Senior Common Room and entitled to free lunch and dinner at the Common Table on the same terms as other Fellows. Normally this will be lunch and dinner Monday to Friday (except when the College is closed) and dinner on Sunday night, in Full Term; no alternative is offered when there is no Common Table meal.

The College regrets that it is unable to offer accommodation, or any kind of Housing Allowance in lieu of accommodation; however, advice about Oxford's large rental market can be offered.

The College has a dedicated shared study room which may be used by those Fellows who do not have office space of their own (including Visiting Fellows) on an ad hoc basis for writing, research, etc.
